in against worldview reimagining christian formation as growth in wisdom simon p kennedy challenges the conventions of christian worldview education and provides a better way there is an increasing recognition today that young people need to have knowledge about religions and world views in order to live and work in diverse societies what kind of maps are they provided with through religious values and ethics education does education address the challenging existential questions that children and adolescents ask about life and the world this volume addresses different aspects of how existential questions have been dealt with in educational research it especially draws attention to the swedish research tradition of focusing on life questions and the interpretation of life in education but with contemporary international research added it also addresses issues of ethics education and discusses possible options for the future of existential questions as a resource for education originally presented at the sixth adult development symposium the papers in this volume examine possible relationships between the fields of organizational and adult developmental psychology with particular emphasis given to the grand developmental theories of lawrence kohlberg jean piaget lev vygotsky heinz werner and their descendants on the most general level the papers on development in the workplace are organized on the basis of the authors chosen units of analysis the individual the dyad and group and the organizational culture the editors conclude by uncovering similarities and differences among the contributors theoretical approaches to development in the workplace and their own from a recent extension of werner s organismic developmental theory they focus their suggestions for future research on such issues as unit of analysis the holistic and systemic nature of human behavior and experience broader conceptualizations of the person of the environment and of development the need for methodological eclecticism the complementarity of basic and applied research through this lens they shed light on underlying reasons why the majority of authors have focused on the individual worker as a unit of analysis and then propose that future researchers more broadly define the basic concept of development in the workplace this book an edited compilation of twenty nine essays focuses on the difference s that a christian worldview makes for the disciplines or subject areas normally taught in liberal arts colleges and universities three initial chapters of introductory material are followed by twenty six essays each dealing with the essential elements or issues in the academic discipline involved these individual essays on each discipline are a unique element of this book these essays also treat some of the specific differences in perspective or procedure that a biblically informed christian perspective brings to each discipline christian worldview and the academic disciplines is intended principally as an introductory textbook in christian worldview courses for christian college or university students this volume will also be of interest to christian students in secular post secondary institutions who may be encountering challenges to their faith both implicit and explicit from peers or professors who assume that holding a strong christian faith and pursuing a rigorous college or university education are essentially incompatible this book should also be helpful for college and university professors who embrace the christian faith but whose post secondary academic background because of its secular orientation has left them inadequately prepared to intelligently apply the implications of their faith to their particular academic specialty such specialists be they professors or upper level graduate students will find the extensive bibliographies of recent scholarship at the end of the individual chapters particularly helpful the way we think determines our everyday lives political goals are mostly driven by economic interests while ethical questions belong to the realms of worldview lifestyle and education so is the climate crisis merely a matter of belief a recent study suggests that it may be as it shows that four selected models of thinking economism religionism humanism and veganism have very different potential and limitations when it comes to transforming society into a more climate friendly and sustainable one these models are confronted with indicators from the intergovernmental panel on climate change s findings the co2 budget and the concept of planetary boundaries which serve as a normative frame of reference this reveals the structural differences similarities fears and blind spots of the models particularly their varying potential to contribute effectively to overcoming the climate crisis the indicators are then used to evaluate how well the german federal government s 2025 coalition agreement fulfils the internationally agreed climate and sustainability targets to which the government itself is also bound the resulting indicators and grids can contribute to reflection and communication in educational processes political debates and civil society initiatives they can also assist companies in producing climate protection or sustainability reports
